Academic Integrity Policy

The following are among the forms of dishonesty for which sanctions may be applied:

- Using books, notes, or other materials during an examination, unless expressly permitted.
- Using purchased essays, term papers, or preparatory research for such papers.
- Copying others' work or engaging in unauthorized cooperation during an assignment or examination.
- Allowing another student to copy from an examination or other assignment intended to be performed independently.
- Borrowing from published works, whether material is taken verbatim or with minor alterations, without proper and/or sufficient acknowledgment.
- Submitting work originally done by someone else as one's own work.
- Submitting the same written report in more than one course without prior approval from the instructor(s) involved.
- Stealing examinations or assignments.

- Misrepresenting statements concerning work submitted.
- Falsifying or fabricating experimental data or results.
- Falsifying or fabricating the need for extensions on papers or make-up examinations.
- Falsifying or forging of signatures from preceptors or mentors during clinical or labs.

The purpose of the Academic Integrity Policy is to ensure that the faculty oversees the application of sanctions resulting from academic dishonesty where both students and faculty members are aware of their rights and responsibilities relating to academic integrity and due process. The primary responsibility for maintaining personal integrity and honor in academic activities rests with the student.

While discussion and general idea-sharing for homework assignments is allowed, the actual step-by-step completion of the assignments is the responsibility of each student. Any use of another's work will be considered a serious breach of academic honesty and is treated accordingly.

The Pennsylvania Ambulance Training Institute's faculty members have agreed to proceed in a uniform manner whenever they detect violations of academic integrity. Therefore, regardless of the form these violations take (see list above), and regardless of the class, location, or instructor, an offending student (or students) will incur the same penalty: permanent dismissal from the classroom and a failing grade (F) for the course. This action will be taken immediately after the violation has been reported and unless reversed through the appeal process (see below) will remain in effect no matter the consequences to one's financial aid or academic career.

Repeated violations of the Academic Integrity Policy may result in dismissal of the student from the Institute. Under unusual circumstances, the Program Director reserves the right to dismiss the student after the first infraction of the Academic Integrity Policy. Upon a second violation, consultation with appropriate faculty representative(s) will automatically occur. In all cases, notice to the student is required whenever disciplinary action is contemplated.

The student has the right to appeal the action of the faculty member when accused of a violation of the Academic Integrity Policy. All appeals should be directed to the Course Coordinator or Program Director.

The Pennsylvania Ambulance Training Institute may require a student to obtain a fitness for duty certification from his or her physician certifying that the student can perform assigned tasks properly and safely while taking or under the effect of such medicine(s). A student's refusal or failure to return the requested certification may result in disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal.
